POINT

by Debbi Markland Ulmer | Special to Presbyterian News Service

Presbyterians Organized in Nurture and Teaching (POINT) is a volunteer network of Christian educators who offer education expertise and curriculum interpretation skills to churches in their area. POINT training, hosted by Congregational Ministries Publishing (CMP), provides in-depth training on denominational curricula.

Persons who are enthusiastic about denominational curriculum are good candidates for POINT training. "It's exciting to see the enthusiasm of the group and to hear the POINT representatives tell about ways they've successfully used a piece of curriculum," says Malinda Spencer, Associate for Curricula Training and Promotion, Congregational Ministries Publishing. Every presbytery is encouraged to send two POINT representatives to participate in the training. Those representatives return to their presbytery and are available to share information about denominational curricula.

For more information about POINT training, please contact Malinda Spencer at Congregational Ministries Publishing, (800) 728-7228.

Homestead is looking for one more volunteer from the Presbytery to volunteer for the position. (One volunteer has been identified.) POINT persons receive special training on denominational curriculum and occasional samples, so they are equipped to help churches in their presbytery find
